Within the University's academic processes, there may be instances where, in order to enable the University to account for something which has had an impact on you which was out with your control, we may need to process information about you which you have disclosed to us which falls under 'Special Category' Personal Data. 'Special Category' Personal Data is defined under the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) as the personal data about the following –

- Race;
- Ethnic Origin;
- Politics;
- Religion;
- Trade Union Membership;
- Genetics;
- Biometrics (where used for ID purposes);
- Health;
- Sex Life; or
- Sexual Orientation

Where the University processes Special Category Data, we are required by the General Data Protection Regulation to have a legal basis for why we need to process this data. The table below explains the legal basis for processing your data in relation to an Exceptional Circumstances application, an application for an Authorised Interruption of Study, a Leave of Absence, a Concession, a Coursework Extension Request, in the course of an Appeal, or in the course of proceedings under the Code of Student Conduct, Fitness to Practise proceedings, or Exclusion proceedings.
